

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method of determining face sub-spaces includes making initial estimates of the sub-spaces, for example lighting, pose, identity and expression, using Principle Component Analysis on appropriate groups of faces. An iterative algorithm is applied to image codings to maximize the probability of coding across these non-orthogonal sub-spaces, obtaining the projection on each sub-space, and recalculating the spaces.